Snooky is dead! No more will the white streak of eager playfulness come bounding out to meet the Kindergarten children. No. the youngsters laugh with glee. Snooky as you know, was a constant attendant at Williams' Kindegarten for the past three years. With all the rough treatment she received she never turned on a child. She loved them as they loved her.

Tuesday Snooky went exploring Spring called and the green fields might afford a chase. Somehow. somewhere she got hold of poison and although she was rushed to the hospital the poison was too powerful.

The Town will miss Snooky. She was a good citizen. More than this cannot be said for King, Queen or potentate.

EDITORIAL

The Crack of the Bat will soon sound in the land. Already the Colleges and Big Leagues are under way. The Sand Lot teams blooms slower but it won't be long long before we can turn out of an evening for a baseball game.

This naturally brings us to our own Northfield team. The writer had been told that a Northfield was a "Baseball Town," that the whole town was interested in Baseball. We were just a bit disappointed therefore, when we attended the opening Baseball meeting to find only a handful of players and fans on hand to set the policies for the year. Perhaps we expected too much but we certainfy were led to believe that a goodly crowd turned out for anything pertaining to Baseball.

One of the chief topics aired is a familiar one. It comes up in every town where Baseball is played. That is the question "Shall We Import Players?" Like every other important question it has two sides, and it must be considered from both angles.

If the local boys will turn out in numbers large enough to assure the Manager a team every night he needs one he won't be so liable to feel that he must go outside. If he can only be assured of 8 men each night he must find number 9 somewhere.

Again the fans must be considered. They pay the Freight. They have a right to expect nine ball players on hand for every game. The usual local fan is not too critical. He wants his team to win, of course, but winning isn't everything with him. The fact that the town boys are in there enjoying a good healthy pastime counts with him too. At the same time he likes to see baseball as it should be played and if one position is too weak to make a team function the Manager should not be criticized if he reaches out to strengthen the Club. After all it is his Grief. If he doesn't win occasionally he has no money for baseballs, bats, etc. It is a thankless job at best. It compares favorably with judging a Baby Show with only one prize

So let's all get behind the boys this year. If the local boys turn out be sure that they have a crowd to encourage them. Enough encouragement by the Fans will solve all the problems. Will you be

Haigis Announces Hospital Drive

John W. Halgis, who was re-cently appointed general chairman of the Franklin County Public hospital campaign committee stated today the general committee is now in process of formation and an announcement of the member-ship will be made soon.

In studying the hospital situa-tion, Mr. Haigis stated today, "One can not but be impressed by the great service rendered to the people of this community by the hospital, more especially in the past few years. In 1933 alone, 1,424 patients were cared for in the hospital. Of this number, 670 came from Greenfield and 754 from neighboring towns and communities in our county. These pa-Mrs. Wm. Wood and children accompanied by Mrs. Putnam and children all of Deering, N. H., were week-end guests of Mrs. Wm. Mitchell, Hinsdale Road. Mrs. Wood is a sister of Mrs. Wm. Wood is a sister of Mrs. Wm. tients were present in the hospital

1,009.
"Towns with over 100 patient days were Ashfield, Buckland. Charlemont, Conway, Hawley, Leyden, Millers Falls, Montague, Northfield, Sunderland, Turners Falls and Whately. The total in patient days for the year was 18,-321. In the past five years which covers the period in which the present indebtedness occurred, 7,012 patients were received at the hospital, the average time for each patient being about 18 days.

"No greater service could possibly be rendered to our people particularly to those of limited means, than that being given by our hospital. Most people do not realize that a hospital is quite like a college in one respect. We all know that every college student is a financial liability to the institu-tion as the tuition and other fees pay only a comparatively small part of the total cost of the education of that student. It is only the collect which has a large endow-ment fund that exapes a deficit at the end of the year. And so it is with the community hospital.

"I am satisfied," Chairman Hai-gis concluded, "that when the people of the county realize the vital service the hospital has rendered this community, all will rally to its support giving of their time and money, freely and generously. The risis facing our hospital is a challenge to every public spirited citizen of the county and men and women alike must come to the support of the hospital if it is to continue to serve."

Changing his plan in the interest of yet closer cooperation with the churches, he spent the winter of 1878-79 at evangelistic work in Baltimore, 1879-80 in St. Louis, and 1880-81 in San Francisco. Meanwhile, his interests were broadening. He believed in the kind of evangelism that issues in social service; he himself was a doer rather than a preacher merely. In 1879, aroused by the need of the young people in the hills around his home, and heartened by the counsel of Henry F. Durant (qv.), who had recently founded Wellesley College, he es-tablished a school for girls, the Northfield Seminary, intended primon life. His emphasis was upon the gospel of God's fatherly love, marily for those of limited means. In 1881, along somewhat similar rather than the terrors of hell fire. lines, he established a school for boys, Mount Hermon School, near not sensational. Understanding Northfield. Revell, a Chicago ship prayer-"While our brother is finishing his prayer we will sing number 75"—and was inspired by Moody's sermon to give his life to work as a missionary physician in Labrador. In 1891-92 Moody engaged in a final year of work in Great Britain, and in the spring of 1892 visited Palestine.

The seven years between 1884 and 1891 he devoted to evangelistic work, for short periods, in many cities large and small of the United States and Canada. During the first four months of 1887 he conducted an evangelistic campaign in Chicago, which eventuated in his founding the Chicago Bible Institute, formally opened in 1889, primarily for the training of men and women who had not been privileged to receive a college education but felt impelled to enter home or foreign missionary service as lay workers. In connection with this school he organized, in 1894, the Bible Institute Colportage Association for the publication and sale of religious books at prices low enough to secure wide circulation. In the eighties his mind turned toward college students. In 1876 he had visited Princeton, and in 1878, after conducting an evangelistic campaign in New Haven, he had accepted the invitation of Yale students to give a special series of addresses to them. In both of his extended visits to Great Britain he had interested university men, and many had assisted at his meetings. At his invitation J. E. K. Studd, a young graduate of Cambridge University, who was later to become Lord Mayor of London, visited America in 1885 and told to student audiences the story of the spiritual awakening in British universities. In July 1886 Moody conducted a conference of college students at Mount Hermon, which was attended by two hundred and fifty young men from eighty colleges in twentyfour states. Transferred to Northfield in the following year, the conference was made memorable by the participation of Henry Drummond, who gave an address on "The Greatest Thing in the World," which was later published and became one of the most widely read of his writings. Thereafter, the conference was held annually and a like conference for students in the women's colleges was begun in 1893. These conferences stimulated in the colleges the development of Young Men's Christian Associations and wimilar voluntary organizations of students devoted to Christian purposes. One of the immediate results of the first gathering was the initiation of the Student Volunteer Movement, an organization of col-lege students pledged to seek appointment to foreign missionary service. With its enthusiastic slogan-"the evangelization of the world in this generation"—the Movement did much in the closing years of the nineteenth century and the opening decades of the twentieth to recruit the foreign

A layman, Moody inspired ministers; an evangelist, he understood the importance of Christian education; unschooled, he commanded the admiration and cooperation of University students and teachers; ;a man of large business ability, he devoted himself unreservedly to what he conceived to be the greatest business in earth or heaven — the saving of souls.

On Aug. 28, 1862, he married of prayer, he was tirelessly and Emma C. Revell, daughter of builder, and sister of Fleming H. Revell (q.v.), who became a publisher of religious books. She entered into his work with sympathy and good judgment, and her influence on Moody's life was incalculable. She introduced him to certain social graces and increased greatly his charm and effectiveness. They had two sons and one daughter.

Not a Dying Trade

The 1,300 high school editors in their recent convention heard some good advice, let us hope, from their conferees in the field of grown-up journalism. It is not unlikely that they imparted some useful counsel in return. But at any point in the discussions did any one raise the somber question whether the boy and girl editors were not dedicating themselves to a dead-end industry and a lost

Judging from what one hears in the more intellectual circles, the outlook for a free press is no bet-ter than for free institutions in this country, along with the rest of the world. What is the use of boys and girls learning how to produce a good newspaper when there will be a Fascist or Communist colored shirt to tell them how? When all government has passed into the hands of the strong men life will be just one big "handout." Action, thought, speech will be strictly in accordance with blueprint supplied from headquarters.

That is what the intellectualists say. Our own opinion is that there will be free newspapers in the United States. The high school Defoes and Greeleys are not wasting their time.—New York Times.

comparison . . . the standard of economical, labor-saving convenience . . . the standard of modernity.

The heart of the modern all-electric kitchen is the automatic electric range. Styled for beauty as well as utility, the electric range brings new attractiveness to the kitchen. Its economy, speed and dependability offer a new convenience, and its automatic time and temperature controls give new hours of leisure to the busy homemaker.

Make your kitchen modern with all-electrical equipment. Your dealer or our representative will suggest a plan for making yours an all-electric kitchen, either as a unit, or step by step over a period of time.
